CBM AUSTRALIA

ANNUAL REPORT

WHO WE ARE

CBM Australia is a Christian international development organisation fighting to end the cycle of poverty and disability. CBM Australia is a member of the CBM Global Disability Inclusion federation.

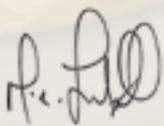

MICK TURNBULL BOARD CHAIR

St John's gospel underlines that Jesus Christ came among us that we might have life in abundance. This is an invitation to live life to the full, in the here and now, no matter what.

Across all the disruption, anxiety, suffering and grief of 2020's COVID-19 experiences, this principle resonates. Uncertainty and constant change are not new, and the pandemic has shone a light on these realities as a health and humanitarian disaster that continues to be deeply challenging for all countries where CBM works.

Part of our governance imperative at CBM Australia is to live resolutely in the present and thrive in the uncertainty, while continuing to hone our future skills and the forward sustainability of our most adaptive programs. 2020 brought a remarkable generosity from our supporters, creating a strong financial position alongside significant cost containment. On behalf of the Board, staff and volunteers, I thank every giver – those who added their prayers, their money and their solidarity to the cause of breaking the cycle of poverty and disability.

Together we have abundant opportunities in the face of deep needs. May we embrace them and be fully present with people with disabilities, and their communities, across the globe.

JANE EDGE

The impact of COVID-19 on those we serve in 2020 was dire. A global study has found there were catastrophic failures to protect the lives, health and rights of people with disabilities. This meant we doubled down on our efforts to amplify the voices and needs of people with disabilities in every forum possible.

We increased our disability inclusion advisory support to the Australian Government as well as other aid organisations and we launched our rebranded Inclusion Advisory Group, which is increasing our impact and influence globally. Every program was responsive to local context, while ensuring strong advocacy alongside people living with disabilities.

Importantly, we continued to evolve. CBM Australia played an integral part in the formation of CBM Global Disability Inclusion, an effective network for positive change led by the Values you see on page 14. Championing Inclusion and Striving for Justice resonate so strongly for me as together we continue our fight to end the cycle of poverty and disability.

Looking back on 2020, I'm incredibly grateful for God's presence; the determination and adaptability of CBM Australia staff and volunteers; the steadfast belief of the Board and Members; and the extraordinary generosity and trust of our faithful supporters and partners. Together, we make transformative change happen.

OBJECTIVE A

PARTNERING FOR STRENGTHENED

OUTCOMES AND IMPACT

CBM Australia supports people with disabilities and their families to take pathways out of poverty and exclusion, ultimately benefiting the whole community. We strive for social justice and to end the cycle of poverty and disability.

No one should be isolated or marginalised just because they have a disability, and our community-level programs provide opportunities for people with disabilities to understand their rights, access opportunities and become agents for local change. CBM works with local partners including local Organisations of People with Disabilities (OPDs), so that people with disabilities influence local decisions, including how we work.

COVID-19 set CBM and our partners a clear challenge: to make sure no one was left behind in country-level responses. The pandemic exposed gross inequality and highlighted discrimination faced by people with disabilities.

CBM's International Programs (IP) and Inclusion Advisory Group (IAG) responded swiftly to the pandemic. IP partners adapted work in eye health, inclusive community initiatives, mental health and humanitarian responses. We were thrilled that the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade (DFAT) allowed flexible use of our Australian NGO Cooperation Program (ANCP) grant. Partners addressed new and pressing needs such as accessible public health messages, protective personal equipment (PPE), emergency provisions and additional training.

IAG programs focused on ensuring that people with disabilities were included in the COVID-19 responses of other organisations, including the Australian

THE WORLD BANK ESTIMATES THAT BETWEEN 119 AND 124 MILLION PEOPLE JOINED THE GLOBAL POOR IN 2020. CBM AND OUR SUPPORTERS UNDERSTAND THAT PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES ARE MORE LIKELY TO LIVE IN POVERTY, AND PEOPLE LIVING IN POOR COMMUNITIES ARE MORE LIKELY TO HAVE OR TO ACQUIRE A DISABILITY.

Government. IAG worked with OPDs across the Indo-Pacific to conduct a rapid-needs assessment for DFAT, highlighting the urgent needs of people with disabilities.

Throughout 2020, CBM directly supported people with disabilities, their families and communities to respond to the pandemic. We also generated evidence to illustrate the 2020 pandemic experience of people with disabilities; evidence empowers partners to advocate to their governments. And governments themselves made changes to include people with disabilities in COVID-19 responses.

Our eye-health partners joined their governments' priority to address COVID-19, so that hospital services moved to focus on COVID-19 reducing eye-care services. Despite this, our partners in Bangladesh, Indonesia, Philippines, India, Nigeria, Vietnam, Ethiopia and Nepal responded to unique challenges including rotating medical teams, ensuring that emergency eye care and critical surgery were available once COVID-safe practices were in place. A number of partners worked with OPDs to ensure critical care packages (hygiene and food) were available to people with disabilities.

IN 2020, TWO OF OUR VALUES – INTEGRITY AND JUSTICE – WERE KEY

CBM worked directly OPDs in a range of countries to ensure that, as representative bodies, they were able to speak directly with those making decisions on the ground regarding COVID-19 responses.

The result was better government approaches to inclusion, including:

- Development of inclusive communication on COVID-19 precautions.
- Considering how people needing care would be impacted by lockdown regulations.
- Improved policy and planning.
- Ensuring that people with disabilities accessed government relief and social-protection support.

22 countries in the Pacific, Asia and Africa where CBM programs operate.

19 IAG Australia and 9 IAG global partners, including the Australian Government, World Vision, UNICEF and other UN agencies, the Asian Development Bank.

5.1 million people with disabilities, their families and communities benefited from our ongoing field programs and IAG advice in 2020.

9 Organisations of People with Disabilities (OPD) actively working with our IAG team.

NEW SKILLS FOR SURVIVAL

CBM partners acted swiftly to ensure that people with disabilities were not forgotten in COVID-19 responses, even when many were themselves locked down or facing restrictions.

In the Philippines, Bangladesh, India and Cameroon, CBM supported vulnerable families of people with disabilities whose income sources had dried up because of lockdowns, with cash and in-kind supplies to tide them over during the difficult year. Other programs worked with people with disabilities to adapt: for example, CBM's mental health program in Nepal and Indonesia helped clients to develop new income-earning strategies.

SRI HASCARYO WAS ONE SUCH PERSON.

An entrepreneur pre-COVID, Sri ran a gift box production business supplying 16 shops. When COVID-19 hit, the businesses halted and the need for his gift boxes dried up. Sri is a single parent with a psychosocial disability who lives in the west Yogyakarta Special Region in Indonesia. With no demand and mounting bills, he had to think quickly. Sri worked through CBM partner Pusat Rehabilitasi YAKKUM (PRY) which provided him with face shield (PPE) production training. Sri worked hard to meet targets and deadlines, and his skills increased. His income slowly improved. "We have to adapt, because silence doesn't solve the problem," Sri says.

CBM's program is supported by the Australian Government through the Australian NGO Cooperation Program (ANCP).

INCLUSION ON THE AGENDA

In Ethiopia CBM supported the Federation of National Associations of People with Disability (FENAPD), which represents seven organisations.

Semret Zenebe, who is a coordinator at FENAPD, said: “We were focusing on what the government needs to do to be inclusive in their COVID-19 response and shout this out. We were showing the evidence of the gap in their response that meant that people with disabilities were not being supported in the same way as others.”

FENAPD’s accessibility audits of government treatment and quarantine centres led to sign language translators being available, enabling better communication between health staff and deaf people. Once appointed to the government emergency response committee, FENAPD lobbied to ensure people with disabilities living in poverty gained food packages and social support. FENAPD worked effectively with media, convincing TV stations to use sign language interpreters in COVID-19 announcements, and ensured that radio shows addressed issues relating to disability.

Edwina Faithfull-Farmer, Director of International Programs at CBM Australia, said: “During the pandemic, we saw our partners and Country Offices really step up their advocacy for disability inclusion. As a result, governments got on board to ensure that people with disabilities were not left behind. This sets precedents for the way people with disabilities are included in future, including in emergency responses. In 2021 we are developing field programs in the Pacific. We will stay focused on who is missing out, the experience of people with disabilities during the continued pandemic, and the wake it leaves behind.”

CBM acknowledges the support of the Australian Government through the Australian NGO Cooperation Program (ANCP) to 18 projects that responded to COVID-19 in 2020.

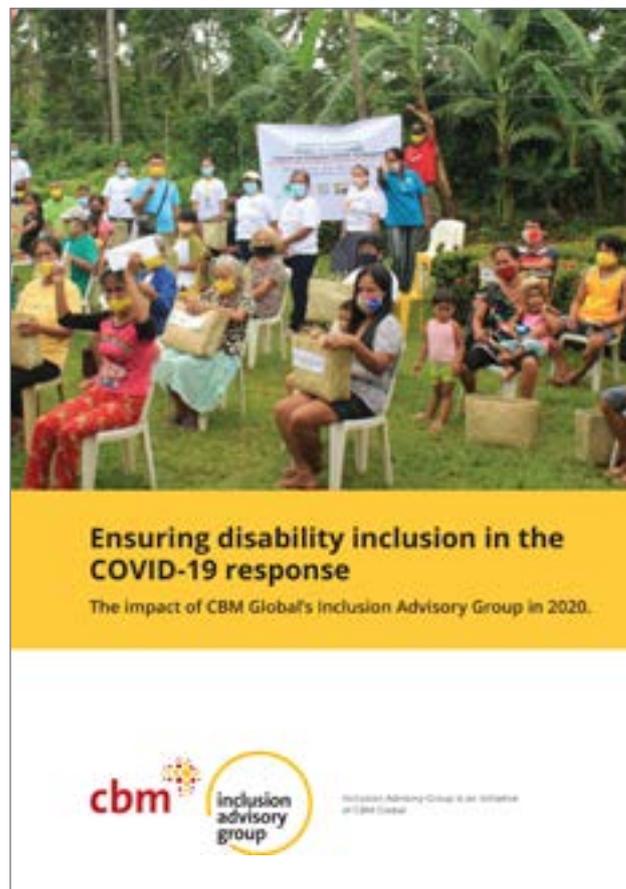

IAG – ADVISING ON DISABILITY INCLUSION IN COVID-19 RESPONSES

Australia’s development and humanitarian programming underwent huge changes in response to COVID-19. Our Inclusion Advisory Group (IAG) worked intensively with the Disability Inclusion Section in DFAT to ensure people with disabilities were not left out of the government’s COVID-19 global response and recovery plans.

We provided support around disability inclusion to DFAT as it increased the focus on social protection and accessibility in its overseas aid programs. See our 2020 Impact Report.

The IAG also worked with NGOs to ensure their responses to the impacts of COVID-19 were disability inclusive, through their water and sanitation programs, and advice on how home-schooling programs best included children with disability.

PACIFIC FOCUS VITAL IN LEAVING NO ONE BEHIND

In January 2020, CBM’s IAG, along with the Pacific Disability Forum (PDF), the Centre for Inclusive Policy and the Pacific Islands Forum Secretariat, held a workshop for the disability focal points from 10 Pacific Islands governments as well as disability movement representatives in each country, to discuss inclusion across the region.

The government focal points led implementation of their disability policies in line with the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. In some cases, they’d had no training on disability inclusion nor met disability movement representatives.

Having government hear directly from people with disabilities is crucial, as often personal stories and relationships change attitudes and grow commitment. This workshop helped the focal points understand their roles and share information on issues such as social protection systems, accessibility in building codes and disability-inclusive budgets. It was an important start to developing regional capacity to bring systemic change.

Having people with disabilities involved in the training also helped to develop relationships at a country level.

IAG advisors supported PDF to develop its 2021–2025 Strategic Plan, which addresses COVID-19 impacts but also outlines key future priorities. CBM Australia has been named a key partner for PDF in implementing this plan.

“CBM has helped us to develop messaging, and this helps us to convince partners on why disability inclusion is important.” – PDF representative

Raine Dixon, Director of IAG at CBM Australia, said: “PDF and its partners, like CBM, have a really clear idea of what must be done, but without a major injection of resources by governments and donors, people with disabilities will continue to be left behind, even more so with the added impact of COVID-19. We aim to help PDF mobilise funds for critical gaps in services as well as provide them with technical support through our advisory work.”

This work was funded by DFAT under the DFAT-CBM Partnership.

OBJECTIVE B

INCREASED SUPPORT AND ENGAGEMENT

In 2020, CBM Australia worked hard to amplify the voice of people with disabilities in the poorest countries.

We shared more stories of people with disabilities, provided toolkits and information, and gathered evidence of the growing lack of access to health services, jobs, education and safe housing.

Despite Australians living through the uncertainty of COVID-19, their compassion overflowed, particularly as the evidence of the catastrophic effects of the pandemic on people with disabilities in the poorest countries continued to mount.

While we could not visit our faithful supporters or hold events, we were blessed with the support of over 43,000 people generously giving more than $21 million to our programs – an increase of 8% on the previous year. 6,742 new supporters shared their heart for people with disabilities living in poverty by joining the CBM family.

We were also able to increase our brand awareness to attract new supporters to our cause. Website visits were up 61%, with new visitors making up 63%, and Facebook likes were up 4%.

The generosity spread to our new work with the philanthropic sector. We received funds from Perpetual Impact Grants, Equity and Mutual, and many of our existing supporters, such as Macpherson Kelly Foundation, increased their donations.

Importantly, in 2020 we were really encouraged by supporters joining us in action. This was highlighted on the International Day of People with Disabilities (IDPD) where we launched our campaign, #BetterWorldForAll. For the launch, 12 people with disabilities from across the world shared their vision of a better world. The results included:

- 111,000 views of the video on social media.
- 37 international development agencies shared a post about IDPD and disability inclusion, tagging #BetterWorldForAll.
- 89 sector supporters engaged online using the #BetterWorldForAll hashtag.
- 110 people signed up to continue their involvement in CBM's advocacy.

CBM recognises its strength comes from partnerships. That is why we joined the #EndCOVIDForAll campaign, a coalition of more than 200 diverse organisations calling on the Australian government to help #EndCOVIDForAll people and nations, especially the world's poorest.

The government has since announced more than $1 billion in funds to support our region in responding to the health and economic challenges of COVID-19.

However, not all the figures were favourable in 2020. CBM called on the government to reverse a 25% cut to DFAT's central disability allocation (down to just $9.6m in FY 20–21). And we rallied other aid and development organisations to support our call.

Imagine a world where we selflessly worked together to empower and help those less fortunate than ourselves, to leave no one behind. That is what our valued supporters did in partnership with CBM Australia in 2020. We thank you.

A LEGACY FIRMLY EMBEDDED IN FAITH, FAMILY AND COMMUNITY

Heather Maddy's late mother Thelma had two passions, craft and charity, and Heather is continuing that legacy of support for those in need, through COVID-19 and beyond.

"Mum was passionate about helping others and held a firm belief that everyone should have access to clean water," Heather told CBM last year.

Thelma discovered CBM through her church in Emu Park, Queensland, and realised her love of craft could lead to tangible support for charities.

On Mondays, Thelma and her granddaughter Angela would sew quilt tops. Tuesdays were for card making at Thelma's home. "On Thursdays she held card-making classes at Emu Park CWA," Heather says. "There was a friendly rivalry between the two groups to see who could raise the most each year." Weekends were just as busy, with beading, knitting and crochet.

Products were either sold, with proceeds going to charities, or donated to nursing homes, homeless shelters or for raffle prizes. Later they were also sold through a Craft for Charity Facebook page.

Thelma passed away in February 2020. Now Heather is honouring her mother by continuing her dedication. "COVID-19 kept us isolated for a while but I have resumed the card classes," she says.

Thelma left an ongoing legacy through CBM's Gift in Will program. Thank you Thelma.

OBJECTIVE C

In our strategic plan, CBM Australia promised it would further strengthen its organisational culture and business model, and in 2020 that came to the fore.

The COVID-19 restrictions had a significant impact on how CBM engaged with our supporters and international partners, requiring substantial changes in our operations. And as a faith-based organisation, our values are at the heart of all our decision-making and actions.

Victorian government restrictions meant all staff were required to work from home, which was only possible thanks to the adaptability, commitment and skill of our people, supported by a strong ICT infrastructure that within days adapted to enable remote working.

Being unable to travel internationally also meant shifting quickly to virtual engagement with overseas partners. Similarly, our regular supporter events could not proceed and staff were quick to ensure updates were provided differently – more social media, email and telephone contact.

The CBM team rose to the many personal and professional challenges in 2020. Inspired by the commitment and tenacity of our CBM and partner colleagues who worked tirelessly at the frontline to deliver support to people with disabilities, our staff and volunteers stayed focused on our contribution to the change we want to see in the world.

This passion and drive, coupled with the extraordinary generosity of CBM supporters, enabled us to grow several key areas of activity – more people than ever before engaged in our advocacy campaigns, our donation income exceeded 2019 and our inclusion advisory work was in even greater demand, which means greater impact in advancing the rights of people with disabilities.

Importantly, CBM ensured we had the right people in the right roles and we worked hard to support them with development opportunities and good people-management practices, which enable us to invite employees at all levels to demonstrate proactive personal leadership within their circles of influence. We listened to stakeholders and staff to ensure our values and behaviours would continue to guide us and we undertook strong assessment of what else we needed to do to role-model strong and inclusive ways of working, which will be rolled out through 2021.

CBM also played a pivotal role in the formation of the CBM Global Disability Inclusion federation, reaffirming our vision and mission and refreshing our organisational values. We have continued to sharpen our focus on fiscal responsibility and good stewardship, risk management and governance, all while strengthening our capacity to deliver coherent and high-quality disability-inclusive development advisory, programs and advocacy worldwide.

CBM is incredibly grateful for the COVID-19 grants made available by the federal and state governments through mechanisms such as Jobkeeper, especially as we saw a decrease in our fundraising income when COVID-19 lockdowns were first rolled out across the country.

VOLUNTEER ZOOMS IN FOR CBM

For more than 25 years, Anne Verwoert has been a familiar face, volunteering at CBM's head offices in Kew and then Box Hill. From March last year, when CBM's office went virtual, Anne maintained her connection and her commitment to prayer; she even wrote a poem about it.

Anne has given thousands of hours to CBM. In the mailing area at Kew, she worked with Alma, Norma and Joan compiling supporter letters. At Box Hill she assisted with mailings, wrote countless Christmas and birthday cards and did much more. Anne has been involved in many Miracles Days, including joining others in praying for the success of the day.

Anne's 25 years of volunteering were celebrated at the virtual Volunteer Christmas Celebration along with Ellen Lew (15 years), Susan Nicholson (15 years), Jan Hartley (15 years), Josie Criddle (5 years) and Andrew Adorno (5 years).

We are blessed to have such a loyal and committed group of volunteers.

2020 REQUIRED COVID-19

RESPONSES IN GOVERNANCE

The CBM Australia Board rapidly adapted to more regular, shorter and virtual meetings across 2020. This enabled constant re-evaluation of safety, risk management, financial sustainability, and the pivot of programming towards COVID-19 response activity. The Board met twice as often, supported by four Board Committees.

The Finance & Audit Committee (FAC) continued to superintend healthy financial and risk management, reforecasting as required.

The Board Development & HR Committee (BDHR) led the adaptation of governance approaches and gave oversight to workforce arrangements. Helen Baker was farewelled from the Board in September and a December 2020 recruitment process brought two new Board members in 2021.

The Programs Committee sustained oversight of program strategy, co-creating direction with Management and monitoring changing risk profiles and project capacity across program countries.

The Community Engagement & Fundraising Committee (CEF) continued to superintend adaptation in public engagement, amplifying advocacy and communications around COVID-19 responses and how Australians could best support disability-inclusive program activity.

CBM Australia is a member of the CBM Global Federation, and continued to work alongside implementing partner CBM International across 2020.

Every CBM Australia and CBM Global meeting in 2020 was conducted virtually, creating new patterns of collaboration and significant savings.

OUR FINANCES

GENEROSITY AND FOCUS DELIVERS

OUR MISSION

In 2020, for every dollar given to CBM Australia, 73 cents supported programs and 20 cents generated funds to support future programs, leaving 7 cents to deliver accountability and administration.

The year began with the tragic bushfire season. Just months later, Australians faced more unprecedented events with the spread of the COVID-19 pandemic. In this time, the community faced immense uncertainty and fear. Many businesses went into lockdown, faced border closures and felt severe economic pressures.

At CBM Australia our hearts went out to those in Australia while our focus remained on those most vulnerable, people with disabilities living in the poorest places.

Through this volatile period, CBM Australia gave even more focus to good stewardship as fundraising and investment income initially dropped. Continued cost containment saw the 2020 non-program expenditure reduced for the fifth consecutive year from $11.6 million in 2015 to $7.7 million in 2020 ($2 million down on 2019).

CBM Australia was deeply grateful for the COVID-19 grants made available by the federal and state governments through funding mechanisms, including:

- Jobkeeper
- COVID-19 Cashflow Boost
- Victorian Government Business Support Grant

Fortunately, in the second half of the year the incredible generosity of our supporters shone through as together we responded to the catastrophic impact of the pandemic on those we serve. This resulted in an overall $1.6 million increase in fundraising income compared to 2019.

The Australian Government also strengthened its partnership with CBM Australia through our IAG technical services and the Australian NGO Cooperation Program (ANCP) to implement development and poverty-alleviation programs overseas.
